

You have the right to receive a “Good Faith Estimate” explaining how much your medical care will cost

Under the law, health care providers need to give patients who do not have insurance or who are not using insurance an estimate of the bill for medical items and services.

- You have the right to receive a Good Faith Estimate for the total expected cost of any non-emergency items or services. This includes related costs like medical tests, prescription drugs, equipment, and hospital fees.
- Make sure your health care provider gives you a Good Faith Estimate in writing at least one business day before your medical service or item. You can also ask your health care provider, and any other provider you choose, for a Good Faith Estimate before you schedule an item or service.
- Initial notice of the Good Faith Estimate may be provided verbally if the health care provider can reach you by phone. A written copy of the Good Faith Estimate will also be provided to you electronically, via your patient portal, secure email, or secure text attachment. If not sent electronically, a printed copy will be placed in the regular mail to the address you have provided. Efforts will also be made to provide you with another copy of the Good Faith Estimate upon arriving to register for the scheduled service.
- If you receive a bill that is at least $400 more than your Good Faith Estimate, you can dispute the bill.
- Make sure to save a copy or picture of your Good Faith Estimate.
